CLAIMS

1. A method and apparatus for analyzing data comprising the steps of:

5   displaying a reference file input interface to a user; receiving reference file input information from the user via said reference file input interface;

displaying a source file input interface to a user; receiving source file input information from the user via said source file

10 input interface;

displaying a data analysis interface to a user;

receiving data analysis criteria from the user via said data analysis interface;

performing data analysis of using said reference file input information,

15 source file input information, and data analysis criteria;

displaying results of said data analysis to the user via said data analysis interface.